

HIPAA HITECH Email/Invoicing/Texting Consent

When we send you an email or text message—or you send one to us—the information transmitted may not be encrypted. This means a third party could potentially access and read the information since it is transmitted over the internet or cellular networks. Additionally, once received by you, someone may be able to access your email or text messages if your device is not secure.

The federal government has provided guidance that if a patient is made aware of the risks of unencrypted communication and consents to receive health information this way, healthcare providers may use these methods to communicate with patients.¹

By signing below, I acknowledge and understand the risks of submitting and receiving protected health information through unencrypted email or text messages. I authorize Everything CPAP, LLC to communicate with me using the methods I have selected below.
